HELD IN DRUG CASE, QUIZZED ON ROBBERY

Frank Fiore, Letter Carrier, Caught With Heroin, Police Charged.

TRAPPED IN BROOKLYN

Wife, Also Arrested, Says She Got the Drug From a Sailor.

ANONYMOUS TIP FIGURES

U. S. Attorney Gets Letter Stating Fiore Was in Big Postal Theft.

The Federal authorities in Brooklyn have begun an investigation to determine if Frank Fiore, a twenty-six-year-old letter carrier, who, together with his wife, Rose, was arrested yesterday charged with having $100,000 worth of drugs in his home, knows anything about the million dollar postal holdup at Broadway and Leonard street recently. Fiore lives at 2 Nassau street, Brooklyn. He and his wife were arrested by Narcotic Agents McCormick, Pasco and Oyster. It is alleged that the agents deceived Fiore into thinking they had come to purchase $9,000 worth of drugs and that when the man and his wife were placed under arrest fifty pounds of heroin valued at $100,000 lay on a table in little boxes with the name "Smith" written on them.

Suspected Agent of Europeans. It is believed by the agents that Fiore is the local agent of a powerful ring of European drug purveyors and that a great quantity has already passed successfully through his hands.

When he and his wife were taken before United States Attorney Collins it was revealed that Post Office Inspector Frank Shea had received an anonymous letter stating that Fiore was one of five men implicated in the Leonard street robbery.

Fiore, however, refused to make any statement before the United States attorney beyond denying the charge. Federal Attorney Collins declared he would investigate to determine if Fiore was in any way connected.

The arrest of Fiore is laid to the cleverness of the narcotic agents. The letter carrier had been suspected for several weeks. McCormick, it is said, finally gained his confidence and introduced Pasco to him as a man who was ready to buy $9,000 worth of drugs. By appointment the two agents went to Fiore's home. Agent Oyster stood inconspicuously in the street outside.

It is charged that Fiore accepted $900 in marked bills from the two agents. They asked him for the drugs in Mrs. Fiore's presence. They were told to leave in the hour. They went out and hid across the street.

The agents charge that Mrs. Fiore emerged from the house with a valise and her two-year-old son. In about half an hour she returned. The agents waited a few minutes longer and then went in again. They say the table was littered with packages, each containing 100 grams of heroin.

Arrest Affected Quietly.

The agents whistled and Oyster came running up. The couple were arrested and submitted quietly. They were then taken to the Federal Building, where they were questioned both concerning the charges made by the agents and also concerning the holdup letter.

Mrs. Fiore is declared to have told the Federal attorney that she got the drugs from a sailor on the steamship Canopic, lying along the Brooklyn waterfront.

Fiore was held on the narcotic charge in $4,000 bail by Commissioner Barmore and his wife in $2,000 bail for examination next Wednesday.

Fiore has been in the postal service for a year. Prior to that time he worked in the navy yard, and before that was a sailor in the navy. He was attached to the Long Island Railroad terminal postal station at Atlantic avenue.

HAYS SUGGESTS THAT WOMEN WRITE PLAIN

The suggestion that women be urged to surrender delicacy of handwriting for the more legible, even should it not appear so neat, is contained in a series of proposals to postmasters throughout the country formulated by Postmaster-General Hays of ways in which to aid the expeditious handling of the Christmas rush. The Postmaster-General also strongly advised against the use of envelopes smaller than the regular mailing size, emphasizing the fact that their use causes a great amount of delay through the need of cancelling them by hand.

Mr. Hays also suggested that as a further facility in the post office, letters let out wrapping and tying concessions in post office lobbies.

Mrs. Anna Schragen Struck When Goldschain Loses Control of Machine.

GIRL DIES OF INJURIES

Man, 60, Knocked Down in First Avenue, Is Dead in Bellevue.

An automobile which got beyond control ran over the curb at Myrtle avenue and Woodside street, Ridgewood, Queens, yesterday afternoon, and struck Mrs. Anna Schragen, 245 Irving avenue, Brooklyn, knocking her down. Mrs. Schragen's skull was fractured and she died before the arrival of an ambulance, Samuel Goldschain, of 1821 Myrtle avenue, the driver, was arrested on a charge of homicide. He said he could not prevent the accident.

Margaret Patton, 12, of 53 Pierce street, Concord, Staten Island, died yesterday in St. Vincent's Hospital, West Brighton, of a fractured skull received Friday, when she was run down by an automobile in front of Public School 12, in Concord. James Burgans, of 660 Richmond road, Dongan Hills, was released on a charge of felonious assault shortly after the accident, and may be rearrested.

A man about 60 years old, who was struck by an automobile at First avenue and Twenty-second street last Monday, died yesterday in Bellevue Hospital. He gave the name David Shyne a short time before his death, but did not give an address. The police have not found the driver of the automobile. Ford Shotwell, a member of the New York Athletic Club, was struck by a taxicab at Seventh avenue and Fifty-ninth street yesterday morning and knocked down. His scalp was lacerated and his face bruised. The taxicab driver turned south in Seventh avenue and got away. Mr. Shotwell was attended in Post-Graduate Hospital and taken to the N. Y. A. C., where he lives.

An automobile struck Donald Campbell, 11, of Dumont, N. J., while he was roller skating in the street near his home yesterday, and broke his neck. He died an hour later. The driver, Harold M. Diehl, of Washington, was held on a charge of manslaughter.

Ellas J. Levy, 71, of 173 129th street, Belle Harbor, Queens, died last night at St. Mary's Hospital, Jamaica, of hemorrhage following a slight automobile accident in Richmond Hill. He was in an automobile driven by his nephew, Max Sanger, of Belle Harbor, when the car bumped into a grocery wagon. No one was hurt and neither vehicle was damaged. Mr. Levy complained after the automobile started on of not feeling well. Sanger drove him to the hospital, where physicians said he was suffering from shock. A hemorrhage followed shortly. Dr. Howard W. Neill, Assistant Medical Examiner of Queens, said he would investigate the case.

FIRE CAPTAIN IS SHOT. The police of Union Hill and Weehawken, N. J., are investigating the shooting early yesterday morning of Capt. Frank Short of the Weehawken fire department, at Broadway and Fourth street, Union Hill. His condition is said to be serious.

Lieut. Charles Friede, of the Union Hill police arrested John Seili, a taxicab chauffeur, of 440 Seventh street; Edward Cummings of 108 Seventh street, West New York, and Bert Knox of 236 Fourth street, who were with Short when the shooting occurred.

ONE KILLED, 3 HURT, IN GARAGE ELEVATOR

Cable Breaks at Fourth Floor With Automobile and Four Men.

MYSTERY IN ACCIDENT

Machinery Had Just Been Repaired at Cost of $1,500, Says Owner.

One man was killed and three others were injured yesterday when an elevator in the Alfred J. Higgins garage, 614 to 618 West 129th street, broke a cable and dropped from the fourth floor to the basement. On the elevator was an automobile in which were three men. As the elevator struck, the bottom of the shaft the automobile crashed over against James McKeon, 50, of 170 West Sixty-fifth street, the elevator operator, and crushed him against the wall. He was crushed to death. The crash brought down beams from the top of the elevator, which went through the automobile top, injuring the three men. They are Charles Colonico, 553 West Sixty-eighth street; Charles McCabe, 2169 Eighth avenue, and George Lange, 625 East 141st street. The crew of Hook and Ladder 21 rescued them. They had scalp wounds and bruises and were taken to Knickerbocker Hospital. When the cable broke, the men said, the elevator started going down easily, but then picked up speed. Colonico, who was at the steering wheels of the automobile, heard McKeon shouting and saw him trying to operate the controls. But the brakes did not check the descent. An investigation was started, but no conclusion was reached yesterday. Julius W. Meyers of 2901 Jerome avenue, The Bronx, head of the garage company, said he could not understand how the accident happened. The elevator had been repaired last week, he said, at a cost of $1,500, and was tested and pronounced safe by the city inspectors.
